Brewood.

Brewood, D Breude, "hill wood," was a Manor of the Bishops of Chester, with a Church and a resident priest, dating back to Saxon times. In the Parish were the Manors of Chillington, Coven, Engleton, Gunston, Hyde, Bromhall, Brinsford, Aspley, and Somerford. Brewood was once a royal forest, but it was disafforested by King John, who visited Brewood in the years 1200, 1206, and 1207, and stayed at the Bishop's Manor House, which was probably close to the Church. In the year 1221, through Bishop Cornhull, a market was granted to be held every Friday; and once there stood an old Market Cross in the Square that still bears the name of Market Square, which fell down in 1810. In the year 1256 Bishop Weseham retired from his See and lived in the Manor House, but died in the following year. At Black Ladies, in the Parish of Bishopswood, which was separated from Brewood and made a separate Parish in 1852, was a Benedictine Nunnery, dedicated to St. Mary, which may have owed its origin to one of the Bishops of Lichfield. It was founded before 1162, as Margery, one of the daughters of Sir Ralph de Coven, who married Henry de Parco, endowed it with an annual rent of 16d. on land in Horsebrook. The last Prioress was Isabella Launder, and at the Dissolution Sir Thomas Giffard bought the site, together with the Church, water mill, and a pasture, the annual value of which was estimated at £7 9s. 1d., for £134 1s. 8d., and had to pay an annual rent of 15s. The house became a residence of that family till 1718. A long law suit was entered on between the parochial authorities of Brewood and the Giffards to bring Blackladies within the jurisdiction of Brewood for rateable purposes, in which the Parish of Brewood was successful. The old Chapel was used for service with a resident priest till 1840, when the Roman Church was built in Brewood, and one of the last priests, John Roe, pastor of Blackladies for 48 years, lies buried in the ruins of White Ladies. At a short distance from Black Ladies was the Cistercian Monastery of White Ladies, dedicated to St. Leonard, which is situated in the extra parochial Boscobel, "the beautiful wood," where Edward Giffard, son of Thomas, about A.D. 1580, built a house for the concealment of Ministers of his faith, as also a residence for himself. Boscobel passed from the Giffards to the Cottons by the marriage of Frances, daughter of John Giffard, to John Cotton, who died in 1654, leaving an only daughter, Jane, who married Basil Fitzherbert, of Norbury and Swinnerton. Their descendant, Thomas Fitzherbert, sold White Ladies and Boscobel in 1812 to a Mr. Evans, whose representatives now possess it.

THE HYDE—"AN ESTATE."

The first of the name of de Hyde is found in the reign of King John, and the Manor remained in the hands of that family till A.D. 1418, when the last of the family, Elizabeth, married Richard Lane and brought to that family the Manors of Hyde, Gunston, and Bromhall. The family of the Lanes sprung from Wolverhampton. Richard Lane was buried in Brewood Church, as was also his son John Lane and his wife Margaret, and their tombstone, which was originally in the Lady Chapel at the east end of the south aisle, was discovered at the restoration of the Church in 1878, and placed at the west end of the south aisle, and in a window in the south aisle were the Arms of Richard Lane, John Lane, and Margaret his wife. The last of the Lanes to possess this Manor was Thomas Lane, who died in 1775, but before this the Manor of Hyde passed to the Giffards by purchase.

Staffordshire Parish Registers.

SOMERFORD—"SUMMER FORD"?

The Manor of Somerford was carved out of the Bishop's Manor of Brewood by a grant of Robert Peche, who held the See from A.D. 1120 to 1126, the Bishop's Saxon tenant Frane being dead and leaving an only daughter Hainilda. Frane had held an hereditary forest office, but his daughter was unmarried, and so the Bishop enfeofs Richard de Somerford, who was to perform the service due from the land and to receive the profits of the Manor, and on the death of Hainilda to receive the lands. The family of Somerford continued till 1704, when Sir Walter Wrottesley, who had purchased the Manor from the Mortgagees of John Somerford, lived at Somerford during the re-building of his house at Wrottesley. He died in 1712, and was buried at Brewood, as was also his widow, Dame Anne, who was his second wife and a daughter of Mr. Justice Burton, of Longnor, Co. Salop. She died in 1732, leaving the Manor of Somerford to her daughter Ann, the wife of Thomas Hutchinson, Esq., of Owthorpe, Co. Notts, in trust for sale, and it was sold in 1734 for £5,400 to Robert Barbor, Esq., of the Inner Temple. In 1779 it was purchased by the Hon. Ed. Monckton, and is now in the possession of F. Monckton, Esq.

BROMHALL—"BROOM-MEADOW."

As to Bromhall, we have a grant of this Manor (A.D. 1150-1152) from Walter Durdent, Bishop of Coventry, to Ralph de Harborne, of all the land in Bromhall, with the same judicial power as the Bishop himself possessed in his Manor of Brewood, and the issue of Ralph took up their abode at Bromhale and founded a family named after it. This family lasted till the year 1326, when it became merged with the Manor of the Hyde, in possession of Thomas de la Hyde and Margaret his wife, who was probably a de Bromhale. From the Hydes it passed to the Lanes, and in 2 H. VI. the Lanes sold it to John Leveson, of Wolverhampton, who in 15 Eliz. sold it to John Leveson, of Little Wyrley, Esq., who sold it to Roger Fowke, of Brewood, Esq. It was for many years the residence of the family of Careless, and the birthplace of the famous Colonel Carlos who shared the Boscobel oak with Charles II. on September 6th, 1651. At a later period when Bromhall was in the possession of the Giffards in 1724 Peter Giffard was obliged to have recourse to an action for ejectment, which was tried at Stafford.

ENGLETON.

Engleton ("English town") is another old Manor and seat of a family which took their name from the place. The earliest known was Ralph de Engleton (1150-2). The last of the family was Hugh, who left a daughter, married to Thomas de Levereshead. On his death he left two daughters—Joan who married Adam de Wisbrid, and Eleanor. On their death the Manor came to Alan de Withyford and Joan his wife, who was a daughter of Joan de Wisbrid, and they willed it to Roger Fowke and Elizabeth his wife. From the Fowkes it passed to the Husseys, and in 1767 Phineas Hussey, of Little Wyrley, Esq., sold it to Thomas Plimley, of Brewood Hall, Esq., who in 1786 sold it to the Hon. Edward Monckton, and it is now in possession of his representative, F. Monckton, Esq. But the principal family at Engleton, though they never possessed the Manor, was the Moretons. They came from Moreton and Wilbrighton, Co. Stafford, the first of whom was Hemming de Moreton, who held Moreton under Wm. Fitzalan in 1166. The property at Engleton was probably acquired by a marriage of Matthew Moreton with Isabel, daughter of Robert Knightley, of Engleton, Esq., and this property came to a younger son Thomas, who died in 1558. Edward Moreton (1634-1687) married Elizabeth Ducie, and their son Matthew, in 1720, was created Baron Ducie of Moreton. A quaint monument is in the Church to the memory of Edward and Margery Moreton, who died in 1630 and 1633, and their son Matthew who died in 1669 and his wife Sarah who died in 1672.

Brewood.

CHILLINGTON—"CILLES TOWN."

The Manor of Chillington occurs in Domesday among the possessions of William filius Corbutionis in Warwickshire. By a deed Peter Corbesun, the grandson of William fitz Corbesun, granted Chillington to Peter Giffard, his wife's nephew, to be held by him and his heirs for the service of half a knight's fee. At the date of this deed Peter Giffard had returned from Ireland, where he had served with distinction under Strongbow (Richard fitz Gilbert, Earl of Clare) in 1170, and at Chillington is still to be seen the grant made to him by Earl Richard of the vill of Tachmelin in Ireland. Peter Corbuson was of Stodley, Co. Warwick. The Bishop constantly laid claim to the Manor, as shown by the different law suits. In the history of the Giffards by General Wrottesley, published in the Salt Historical Collections, vol. v. N.S., he shows that the Giffards, of Chillington, were sprung from the Giffards of Fonthill, Co. Wilts, and that Peter Giffard was son or brother of Walter Giffard, who held a knight's fee in Wiltshire under Godfrey de Scudamore; from whom, either by reason of kinship or overlordship, the Giffard arms of the three stirrups with their leathers were taken. Their story is that of many an English family of knights and squires, with the addition that they are still Giffards of Chillington. They are to be found at Boroughbridge, the Battle of the Spurs and the Field of the Cloth of Gold. In 1585, had their brewhouse been greater, Mary Queen of Scots would have been at Chillington instead of Chartley. After the days of Elizabeth they fell on evil times. In the Church are found monuments to Sir John Gifforde (1466-1566) with his two wives, Jane, daughter of Thomas Hoord, of Bridgenorth, and Elizabeth, widow of Sir John Montgomery, and daughter of Sir William Gresley. His son Sir Thomas also has an altar tomb and his wife Ursula Throckmorton. Another altar tomb is to John Giffard and his wife Joyce Leveson, ob. 1608. John died in 1613. The fourth altar tomb is to Walter Giffard and his wife Philippa, daughter of Henry White. There were also several other monuments to the family which were destroyed when the Church was from time to time defaced.

COVEN—"HUT."

Coven was a Manor 2 miles south-east of Brewood, which lay partly within the bounds of Cannock Forest which extended up to the bridge which crosses the Penk. It gave the name to a family, the earliest of which was Alan de Coven, who held two-thirds of a knight's fee in 1166 under Robert de Stafford. In the Testa de Nevill tem. H. 3 Ralph de Coven holds a knight's fee in Coven of the Barony of Stafford, whose eldest daughter and co-heiress, Alice, married John de Pendeford. Ralph de Coven married Margaret, second daughter of John Bagot. Ralph de Pendeford, their younger son, took the name of Coven and succeeded to the Manor. From the Covens the Manor descended by a marriage to the Burnels, and the sister of one Robert Burnel married Ralph Purcel, son of Ralph, whose son Otvel Purcell was a minor in 11 E. I. In 13 E. III. Chief Justice William de Shreshill purchased the Manor of Coven from Thomas Purcel. On the death of the Chief Justice it descended to his son Sir William, who died leaving a daughter Margaret, who married Richard Harcourt. Sir Walter Harcourt sold it to Sir Walter Leveson, whose executors sold it to Sir Edward Littleton. Sir Edward Littleton sold it to the Lanes, who sold it to Dame Ann Wrottesley, widow of Sir Walter and the owner of Somerford. Her son Walter died before his mother, but he was married to a Miss Craig, and left a son Thomas, to whom was devised the Manor of Coven. Thomas, in 1733, married his cousin Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Wrottesley, the fourth Baronet. He left no issue, and by his will dated September 29th, 1733, he devised the Manor of Coven to Magdalen Craig, spinster, and her heirs. This estate was conveyed to Robert Barbor, Esq., of the Inner Temple, for £3,550, and was sold by him to the Hon. E. Monckton.

Staffordshire Parish Registers.

BRINSFORD—"BROWN'S FORD."

Brinsford lies partly in Coven and partly in Bushbury. At Doomsday it was probably included in Coven. In the time of H. III. Bertram de Burgo, Kt., was lord, and afterwards Richard Bagot. In 1300 Edward, son of Philip Burnel, held it of the Barony of Dudley. It afterwards came to Sir William Shareshull, and then to the Lanes, and eventually to the present possessors the Moncktons.

ASPLEY—"THE ASPEN TREE LEA."

Aspley is another old Manor, between Somerford and Shareshill, which in 21 H. VII. was held of the Harcourts by Thomas Ellingbridge. It then passed to the Fowkes, and from them to the Bracegirdles. Henry Bracegirdle left two daughters, one of whom married Thomas Watson Perks, of Shareshill, whose representative sold the Manor and estate to the Hon. Edward Monckton, and it is now held by his representative, F. Monckton, Esq.

Coven, including Brinsford and Aspley, was formed into a separate Parish in 1858.

BREWOD—CHURCH AND SCHOOL.

The Church at Brewood, dedicated to the B.V.M., is the work of several periods of time. Of the Saxon building there is no trace. The oldest part is the Chancel which, with its length of 64 feet and elegant lancet windows, may be assigned to about A.D. 1220. The nave, aisles, and tower have been re-built at later dates. The aisles are thought to have been a series of transverse gables, but the gables on the north side were destroyed and the aisle re-built about 1320-1340. The re-building of the nave and tower and spire are sufficiently marked as late Perpendicular, and may be assigned to about 1483, though some would place it earlier. In 1775 the state of the roofs was so dangerous that it was found necessary to repair them, and so the flat lead roof of the nave and the sloping roofs of the aisles were removed and all three combined in one pitch. The north and south doors were stopped, and an entrance made at the west door; and new windows were placed in the aisles. In 1827 galleries were added. In 1879 the Church was restored after the plans of Sir George Street, and the Chancel was again restored in 1905. In the Church are monuments to the Giffards, Moncktons, Moretons, John Perrott, whose mother Anastasia, was daughter of George Barbor, Esq., of Somerford, Fowkes, and others. There is also a monument to the Right Rev. Charles Berington, Roman Catholic Bishop of the Midland District, who died in 1798, and resided at Long Byrch, an interesting old house off the Codsall Road, belonging to the Giffard family, and used as the dower house, which has, alas, been replaced by a modern monstrosity. A clock and eight bells, the bequest of Charles Docker, Esq., were put up in 1897. Brewood was ordained a vicarage in 1274. It was a peculiar of the Deans of Lichfield till 1846, and in 1170 Bishop Peche gave lands at Brewood to the Dean. There is an old Grammar School connected with the name of Dr. Knightley in 1553, though it was probably attached originally to the Church. For some time the Giffards had to do with the school, and there were several Chancery suits. The school is administered by a Governing Body constituted under the Endowed Schools Acts. There is an agricultural department subsidized by the County Council, who also, year by year, offer Agricultural and other Scholarships, to be held at the school. Valuable Exhibitions were founded by the late Rev. Henry Kempson and Mr. William Parke. At this school Dr. Johnson once applied for the post of usher. Among the pupils have been members of the principal families in South Staffordshire. The charities amount to about £150 a year.
